“OWN IT” CULTURE CREATOR

A Force for Positive Corporate Change

Actively disengaged workers cost the U.S. nearly $550 billion in lost productivity annually. This statistic is staggering — and something leaders should be paying attention to. Disengagement is crippling many leaders' ability to build high-impact companies.

The answer? The conscious development of the ownership mindset in oneself and others—learning to “think like an owner”—makes the difference between paycheck players and top performers. Cultivating an ownership mindset is crucial to creating a productive, engaged workforce and attracting and retaining talent.

By undertaking a dramatic shift in mentality from an employee mindset to an ownership mindset, Kerry Siggins pulled herself from the depths of substance abuse and a dead-end lifestyle to become the head of one of the world's leading manufacturers of industrial cleaning equipment and a finalist for Colorado's CEO of the Year — all by embracing The Ownership Mindset.

Able to captivate audiences, Kerry weaves her personal story and leadership experience in a way that inspires listeners to build a life, culture, and company based on The Ownership Mindset — a mindset of engagement, responsibility, accountability, choice, and effort. She leaves listeners with actionable takeaways that they can implement immediately. Funny, real, and raw, you can't go wrong with one of Kerry's keynotes.
